
8 Tattoos with Incredibly Sentimental Stories

People like to decorate their bodies with ink pictures: tattoos. This has been a practice since the beginning of time. Some tattoos can only be a beautiful picture, others have a deep meaning. We made a list of 8 people who had tattoos and a story about each one. Even celebrities have sentimental stories behind their tattoos. Discover Angelina Jolie's famous shoulder tattoo!

1. Remember a child you will never raise

Losing a child is a very sad event, and losing a fetus is just as devastating. Nathan's mother never thought she would hear him laugh or watch him walk or talk. Unfortunately Nathan died at the age of 16 weeks. After the end of the mourning, her mother decided to commemorate him by tattooing his small prints.

2. Tell your child that you are in this fight with him

Josh Marshall's son, Gabriel, was diagnosed with anaplastic astrocytoma cancer, all he could think about was how he could support his son in these difficult times. Gabe had a great scar after surgery, so her father chose a scar tattoo to show his son he was always there to help.

3. Show her daughter that she is beautiful

Honey-Rae, Tanya's daughter and Adam Phillips of England, has a strange birthmark that climbs her toes at the top of her body. It is pink and very visible. Knowing how cruel this world is for people with differences, be it a birthmark or any other form of physical distinction from the majority, their parents decided to get the appropriate tattoos born from the honey birthmark. Rae. They wanted to show her that she is beautiful no matter what.

4. A tribute to a child you have lost

There are times when a newborn suddenly dies. This is known as sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS). When this happens, parents find different ways to cope with the pain. This father, whose son died of SMSN, was tattooed and laughed at his grandson's chest. A nice way to remember.

5. Various hearing aids

The father of the above photo was able to support his daughter in her fight for acceptance in society. He only tattooed the helmet on his head. The love of a father knows no bounds.

6. Last words of a mother

Losing a father is always difficult to understand, and people go from unbelief to final acceptance. Remembering your father or mother is what you eventually left behind, and Taylor Smith tattooed her mother's last words on her wrist. The words come from a note Taylor discovered just hours before her mother's death.

7. A tattoo of a dog's paw

Dogs are the best friends of the people. Some dog owners come to tattoo the paws of their beloved pets. Look at Jackie Adamski's tattoo, which is a replica of Skunky's leg! She wrote, "Skunky, you're a real artist, thank you for having nearly 200 footprints before you get the perfect one!"

8. The Tattoo of Angelina Jolie

Hollywood star Angelina Jolie also has a story behind her famous shoulder tattoo. It used to be the name of her ex-husband, Billy Bob Thornton, with whom she was briefly married for three years. They then lasered and replaced them with the geographic coordinates of the birthplace of all their children. Some people believe that tattoos are just a work of art; others see it as an expression of their self. But for some of us, it is the only way to remember our loved ones or important events in our lives. If you have such a tattoo, share it with us in the comments below.
