5. Hindu College

Hindu College was founded in 1899 and is under the affiliation of DU and this college was founded in 1899 by Krishan Das Ji Gur Wale. This was done in the backdrop of the nationalist struggle against the British Raj. The college offers undergraduate and postgraduate courses in science, humanities and social sciences and commerce. The college is also among the oldest colleges in Delhi. It is ranked among the top colleges in India for humanities, science, and commerce with more than 100 faculty members. Also, it has been awarded the 'Star College' status for the Department of Biotechnology, by the Ministry of Science and Technology of India. Irrespective of its name, students from all religions are admitted.

The founder, Krishan Das Ji Gur Wale had a vision. He wanted a college that would provide nationalist education to the youth while being non-elitist and non-sectarian. Originally, Hindu college was housed in Kinari Bazar, Chandni Chowk. Back then, it was affiliated to Punjab University as there was no university in Delhi at that time. As the college grew, it faced a major crisis in 1902. The Punjab University warned the college about being disaffiliated. This was done by the university if the college failed to get a proper building of its own.

Fortunately, Rai Bahadur Lala Sultan Singh came to rescue the college from this crisis of being disaffiliated. He was kind to donate a part of this historic property to Hindu college. This property originally belonged to Colonel James Skinner, at Kashmiri Gate, Delhi. The college functioned from this new location until 1953. When the University of Delhi took birth in 1922, Hindu College along with Ramjas College and St. Stephen's College was subsequently affiliated to DU. These three institutions, Hindu College along with Ramjas College and St. Stephen's College, became the first three institutions to be affiliated with the university.
