
Child labor as a major social issue

Child labor is the full work taken by children in any fields of work. It is a compelling demonstration either by the parents or relatives. Childhood is the birth rights which children should live under the affection and care of their parents however this unlawful demonstration of children work forces a child to live life like senior. It causes absence of numerous vital things in the life of kids like disgraceful physical development, improper improvement of the brain and socially and mentally unhealthy.

Child labor keeps a child far from every one of the advantages of the childhood, a most joyful and vital time of the live of everybody. It meddles with the capacity of going to regular school which makes them socially unsafe and harmful for the society. This illegal action of child labor is expanding step by step even after lots of the laws against this by the government to totally forbid the demonstration of child labor. Parents want to make them extremely responsible towards their family in the early childhood of their children. They do not comprehend that their children require love and care, they require appropriate education and play with their friends to grow healthy. Such parents comprehend that their children are the main property of them, they can utilize them as they need. All things considered, each parent need to understand that they have some duty towards their nation as well. They have to make their children healthy in each perspective to make a bright future for the country.

As the world turned out to be more mindful and frightened by the prevalence of child labor, the number of child laborers worldwide has dropped. It is good news, but not enough. More than 200 million children today are child labourers and 120 million are forced to work in dangerous works. 73 million of these children are below 10 years old, where the most part is in sub-Saharan Africa. The number of children forced to go in military and wars have risen to 300,000 over the past decade. Most children work on farms that produce consumer products. 20 million child workers are employed in factories that make clothes, medicines, alcoholic drinks etc.

In order to eliminate the social problem of child labor, there are some solutions to rebuild a good social life of any country. Making more unions may help in stopping the child labor as it will urge more individuals to help against child work. Each family should acquire their base to prevent child labor. The laws of the government should be more strict and also more jobs need to be opened for adults as almost 800 million adults are unemployed. Business and factory owners should not accept children under age in any type of job. These are some easy changes that everyone should contribute in order to stop child labor and increase welfare of our nation.

Child labor is a major social issue which should be solved by both ways, people and

Need help with the assignment?

Our professionals are ready to assist with any writing!

GET HELP

government. Kids are too young, but convey a prosperous eventual fate of any developing country. Everything has its place and the children job is to play with friends and grow in a happy environment of family and school.

gradesfixer.com

Need help with the assignment?

Our professionals are ready to assist with any writing!

GET HELP