
Discussion Of The Juvenile Justice System

The society we live in today; the juvenile justice system is a major concern of law enforcement. Are Juvenile's too young and underdeveloped physically and mentally to be sentenced to death for the murders they commit? Or do they really know what the thoughts are going through their head and the consequences for the actions they take regarding the thoughts they are thinking? Could it be the genes they were born with made them commit the crimes, or it was that they grew up in poverty or a bad community and had no other choice but to become criminals?

There are no excuses to being a criminal when many chances were given to correct yourself. Unfortunately, not many chances are given out to juveniles which really affects them in the long run for the worse. One of the largest concerns of all law enforcement personnel should be the juvenile justice system. Children are the future of America and if they can be reached prior to taking the wrong road then the potential of changing the level of violence in this country could be substantial. Even early intervention of a juvenile offender who can be rehabilitated can minimize the level of offenders that go on to break the law as adults. It is important that juveniles who have entered the justice system have all of the opportunities possible to overcome the obstacles they have faced and police officers are key to this.

Cops are regularly the principal individual a juvenile will come into contact with after an offense caused by them, a relative or even as a casualty. Police who bargain with the country's youngsters and youth, frequently in extraordinary situations—domestic violence, child mishandle and disregard, as observers to community violence, as casualties and as con artists—do not get the preparing to assist the youth with whom they work. (Dacchille and Thurau, 2013). In the event that patrol officers got legitimate preparing and comprehended the significance of early intervention, at that point who knows what number of lives could be influenced. The citizens should likewise get included and help law implementation; it should really be a community wide effort. Hymns 27:11 says "show me your way, O Lord, and lead me on a level way on account of my foes." Law authorization authorities have the chance to show others how its done Christianly and lead the youth of America in a positive way. It is imperative for law authorization to become active and stay active in their communities. Law enforcement that can reach at early age can have a major effect.

An incredible way for law authorization centers to ended up more interlaced with the youth of a community is community policing. According to Detective Thomas Morrissey the New Haven's community youth coordinator, a community policing program must have a committed chairman and police chief and an experienced, trusted, and a well-respected police officer who knows the neighborhood and altogether gets it the community policing rationale and process (Jenkins,

Need help with the assignment?

Our professionals are ready to assist with any writing!

GET HELP

1995). Through community policing, the juveniles within the patrolled region can not only see the officers but advantage from hands-on movement with them as well. This could lead a juvenile offender or conceivable offender down a better and brighter path. Law authorization centers can moreover make extraordinary occasions that draw the consideration of juveniles that reside in problematic areas. For example, law enforcement officers can include juveniles at sporting occasions where they can guide the youth. There are no limits to what can be accomplished in the event that the community and the authorities all work together for the endless great that can come of it.

There are numerous viewpoints that are included when making a choice on where an officer should watch and attempt to create an impact. Those most in need are described as “disproportionately children and youth of color who currently have, or have experienced, a host of risk factors that are associated with poor academic achievement, delinquency, recidivism, substance abuse and mental health issues” (Leone & Weinberg, 2010). Officers who respond to a call where there's a child on scene may utilize that opportunity, on the off chance that able to do so, to create a positive affect. Another critical way to create a contact is to drive through the neighborhoods that an officer is capable for and attempt to create favorable contact with these juveniles early on in their lives. Early intervention is conceivable when police officers work in collaboration with an effective social advantage system, real crime decreases are attainable each time a young blameworthy party is involved absent from a life of wrongdoing (Lemmer & Johnston, 2004). It is never as well late to begin taking the actions to gotten to be a portion of the communities in which at-risk juveniles dwell. Indeed, taking little steps such as getting out of the watch car where there's a bunch of children or getting included inside the school framework can make a tremendous distinction. There's an amazing entirety of demonstrate that certain early-intervention programs show reductions, not because it was in insulting, but in an amplify of risky behaviors (Doob, Sprott, & Webster, 2010).

When early intervention isn't conceivable and a juvenile offender to begin with experience with law enforcement is made amid an occurrence or capture there are still ways to preserve a positive interaction. “Juveniles report direct and vicarious peer experiences with the police that are coercive, highly negative, and arguably discriminatory, and such encounters are correlated with juveniles holding less favorable or supportive views of police [than adults do]” (Brown, Novak, & Straight to the point, 2009, p. 201). In spite of the fact that juveniles may be more argumentative and indeed insolent an officer's responses to them can make all the difference. On the off chance that an officer does not respond adversely to the juvenile at that point maybe that youth can more clearly see the mistake of their ways. Children tend to show the behaviors of those around them such as a parent or more seasoned kin but that does not cruel that they cannot be instructed unused behaviors. Matthew 7:12 speaks of doing to others as you want others to do to you. Police officers should keep this in mind and treat children the way they would want their children treated, when dealing with juveniles.

Need help with the assignment?

Our professionals are ready to assist with any writing!

GET HELP

After a juvenile has entered the justice system officers can still have a positive affect on youth and alter the way that they select to require. This may require more persistence, time, and assets in any case the potential of sparing a juvenile from taking after the way they are currently on is considerable. Within the conclusion, it is up to each office, person officer, and the community to ensure that the juveniles have the interaction required to make a much required positive bond. The division must implement a certain convention for the interaction required between an officer and the adolescents in their purview. The officer must at that point take after through and discover the openings to really ended up included with the youth. The community can help the division and person officers by opening the entryways to the community and inviting law authorization in. Children regularly respond to circumstances by the way they have seen the grown-ups in their lives carry on. As an officer of the law it is relevant that a good relationship is formed and maintained for the benefit of the citizens, young and old, within the area.

In conclusion, whether a juvenile has already offended or is on the way leading towards a wrongdoing, it isn't as well late. Law authorization working together, as well as in conjunction with the community they serve, can accomplish anything and conceivably alter the course of the crime rates within the range whereas having a major affect on the youth of the region. The prior the impact law authorization has in a child's life, the bigger the opportunity for future endeavors of the law authorization community. Maxims 22:6 says that we are to raise our children in the way they should go and when they are older they will not withdraw from that. This is often particularly vital for not as it were guardians but law authorization to keep in mind as well. The way the youth learn the ways of the world presently are the way future eras will learn; little steps can lead to major changes.

Need help with the assignment?

Our professionals are ready to assist with any writing!

GET HELP